Notes

1. All four are models of Ford engine (the Valencia is a re-designed variant of the Kent). Three of the four names also relate to Ford (Europe) manufacturing plants, but there is no Ford factory in Kent.
2. This question would probably have been better avoided, or more leeway allowed on the answer, as there are a number of interpretations on the correct answer, depending on exactly which 'colours' are referred to. According to the University's visual identity guidelines the three colours are grey, purple and yellow (pantone 123). Their web style guide, on the other hand, has four colours: purple, grey, black and yellow. On the other, other hand the academic dress regulations refer to only black, purple and gold. Therefore it would seem prudent to accept either 'gold' or 'yellow' as a correct answer to this question.
3. When asking for a specific shade of a colour (e.g. 'burgundy' rather than just 'red') it is probably advisable to include the word 'specifically' in the question.
4. All question setters are reminded that paired questions should be of similar difficulty and that teams have only 30 seconds to come up with an answer.
5. Some sources give Blackbeard's real name as Edward Thatch, which appears to be an alternative acceptable answer.
6. 'Wire sculpture' or 'wire wrap jewellery' also seem to be correct answers.
7. As the title would suggest, the book is not an autobiography; it is a biography by Emily Herbert.
8. 'Toad-like' is an equally acceptable answer.
9. Stephen Hawking saves Lisa from an 'angry mob', rather than from Mensa.
10. Worcester Warriors are no longer a Premiership team. They were relegated at the end of the 2013–14 season and now play in the Greene King IPA Championship.
11. The question refers to driving tests in the UK. France was the first country to introduce a test, in 1893.
12. As everybody knows, the world's smallest (extant) flightless bird is the Inaccessible Island rail.
